“ My friend Johnny....seemed like he was everyone's friend. Been knowing him since the late 80's , Always had a joke and a smile every time I went there, first thing out of his mouth was " Why dont ya get ya self a cup of coffee and stay awhile"the kinda guy you could pretty much talk about anything with....the amount of people he conversed with always amazed me, couldnt tell ya how many cars would pass by and blow the horn at him...lol..and most of the time he never even knew who it was ,but he would still wave...lol... thats just how he was. Always would tell me how much work he had to catch up on at the house , but would always be behind in catching up on it because he always had people he was helping that either had a broke down car he was fixing or picking someone up somewhere cause they were in a jam....just a guy who was always doing for others.....couldn't say how many times he's helped me when I needed him...He was a guy you could count on....

As far as family....Definitely a family man, always taking care of his mother Doh Doh as best he could and the rest of his family....It was always about family for him, I guess they made me feel like I was part of that family too....

I was there quite a few times towards the end, we had a few conversations about his situation and what was fixing to happen , and how he felt about everything that was going on..... and yet , he still had that happy go lucky attitude about him , even though he knew he didn't have much longer to go. For those of you who knew him and didn't get to say goodbye, It's probably best to remember him as he was before he got sick... just a guy , always fixing cars , looking for that next good deal , smoking cigarettes, drinking coffee , talking about his Harley's and his trike , telling jokes, clowning around , and always talking about a trip on his bike he was fixin to take....but never really had the time to take it....I guess I've said what I wanted to say about this guy who was a friend in a world where the word "Friend" is loosely used and really don't mean what it used to....But for me....He was the definition of the word "Friend".....I will miss you Johnny , wish there were more people in this world like you.....Safe Travels my friend.....
