“ A measure of a person can be summed up with the answer to the greatest question of all... Did They? or Didn't They?. And lives will follow the chosen path accordingly. And when the journey finally ends the answer to that question resonates an eternity.

The joy of listening to your stories and the happiness they brought will be missed but knowing that I will know you again brings peace to my heart. And knowing those before you that you loved, are with you today, brings comfort to my soul.

Your path was long and sometimes hard but it was also a righteous path. For when anyone asks about you, we can truthfully say from our hearts... He Did!
