“ I have so many memories with my daddy. It's hard to choose just one. I just know that I wouldn't be who I am today without the love and guidance that he gave me. He showed me love. Loyalty. To have strength through everything. To always be myself. And my favorite thing he use to tell me was "we may not be rich in money, but we are definitely rich in friends and love." I love that. He knew that money wasn't the most important thing in life. Love and happiness is. He made sure that I knew that. I know that some people thought he wasn't the perfect "father" but he was the perfect daddy for me. He changed his entire life over night just to move me in and take care of me everyday when no one else would. He always protected me and I felt safe knowing that he was looking out for me. You will always and forever be missed by so many. I am going to miss you so much daddy. The world seems a whole lot darker with you gone but I will always carry you in my heart and I know that you are looking down on me still protecting me. I am so thankful and forever proud that you were my Daddio. Rest easy daddy. You deserve it. And I will see you one day. Please be waiting for me at the gates. I love you, my sweet ol' Daddio.

-Your little darling/daughter, Tya Emma Lee Rogers.

“ I have known Waterbed for a long time. I can even remember when his nick-name became "Waterbed". We both had a common interest of motorcycles, and it's related subjects. Not many of the "old timers" left anymore.

You know,,, pictures is something that we never did do very often. I do not have any of him and very few of anybody, including me. But then again I can see a whole book of them in my mind. I guess that is the way it is with the motorcycle crowd.

Rest In Peace Waterbed

Many good Memories of our friend Waterbed. At Cherokee years ago he and I laughed at people trying to manuver through deep mudholes at ceremony ground. We also talked to David Allen Coe and cut up with him.

Waterbed knew someone everywhere we might pop up at the same time.

Sure gonna miss him.
