It doesn't say "husband" that's just a piece of paper, it says "love of her life" & if you knew her/him at all you would know that's 1000% true! They talked about all the time being each other's "sweeties" I hope I can have a love like theirs one day, you truly missed out on such a happy amazing man! Forever my papaw blood or not!

“ Time only moves in one direction and while we know that we still take it for granite. Mom was someone who loved unconditionally, welcomed everyone with open arms just as they were and would let you say what was in your mind whether she agreed or not. She loved to laugh, loved family get togethers, loved card night, loved all the simple things in life. If she passed on even a little of that to me then I should count myself lucky. I wish I would have done so many things and said so many things before now but since I cant I will just say I love you and will miss you dearly and only hope that you can rest in peace.
