“ We met Ms. Faye at Wanda’s Restaurant where you are among folks who soon become a family member on each visit. She was full of wit and precious memories of her Franklin. Also, the Frankie stories would entertain and keep you in stitches. We’ll miss you Ms. Faye. Dwight & Sharon Kilgore 🥹

“ My dear friend Faye...she came into my life just a few years ago as she needed a new hair stylist. I was happy to oblige (even though I wasn’t taking any new clients), because Faye was a hard person to say “no” to. But I have to say, her passion for the little things in life, made me laugh and feel sad on occasion. She would always light up coming in the door at the salon, and all of the girls enjoyed her company as much as I did. The past few months, I could see her struggling but she never complained and never spoke of how bad she felt some days. I know it tickled her that we shared the same birthday, and I truly think that once she entered the salon every single week until recently, her pain seemed so little. Her laugh and her smile, I will never forget!! Rest well, my friend Faye Turner, rest well!!🕊️
