“ At our last 1960 Donelson High School class reunion, I was the only one there at the time Randolph arrived. I recognized him immediately, as he still looked just as I remembered him from elementary through high-school. As we chatted for a bit, I told Randolph we really needed more copies of some fliers we had for attendees, and he immediately said he would go have the staff at the venue to print more for us. I expressed that they might not want to print them for free, as we needed quite a few. His response was, "They've just probably never had Elvis ask them to print anything for them before," and proceeded to get them copied, with no problem. Randolph was a quiet, nice, non-assuming person, with a dry wit and always the perfect gentleman. He will be missed-----Gayle Williams Escamilla.

Thank you so much for sharing that, Gayle. Your description of my Dad was right on point.
