“ What is Sweet Soul Hattie is. I will miss her so much. My favorite memories of her or when she was able to make me laugh in a time in my life there was nothing, I thought, to be happy about. And the stories she shared about the love for her son. And then over a year or so ago we were able to meet again when we were in a much happier place in our hearts. Several of us were lucky for her to join us on a team at the Marriott. As a co-worker she was also a good friend to many of us there. She was an encourager and a helped out whenever she could. Most of all, I remember how she would take time to pray, without judgment, with the homeless downtown that would stop in just to get out of the weather. She made God's grace visible on Earth. I hadn't seen her for awhile, and I wish I could have been there for her. I do know this, she had family in heaven that she missed dearly, and my faith lets me know that they were there for her with open arms and she will forever be at peace. I pray now for peace for the family. Fly high angel.

“ I grew up looking forward to hanging out with my cool older cousin and getting her hand-me-downs. She has been in and out of my life for as long as I can remember, but she's always been in my heart. It's hard to believe the strong, vibrant woman I was hanging out with last week is gone. I will always wish we had more time.
