“ So sorry about James my late husband William E Smith (Ernest) thought an awful lot about him and enjoyed many working days with him. God bless you all.

“ James was a person that made coming to work interesting. Always pulling a prank and laughing at himself as well. James could give you a look that had you wondering if he was really mad or bluffing. I loved working with him! He had a big heart and was always willing to help those in need but did so without a lot of fanfare. One Saturday morning about 7:30 he knocked on our front door with a mixed breed German Shepard and told me my boys needed a dog. I may forgot some people I worked with but never will I forget James and the many episodes at work. Jimmy Hopkins recently related the story of Tommy Thompson telling James he could not get along with people to which James replied " I get along with who I want too". I guess he wanted to get along with me because we got along great. The world is a better place because James walked on it. I am in Florida and cannot attend but Lynn and those who love him will be in my prayers the next week. God's Blessings in this time.
