“ Steve, you were such a good Brother! Let me tell you how Steve became "Doc." Daddy raised pigs early at the Gray house (our first house as a blended family) and my dear brothers were genuinely making every effort to "fatten the hogs," so Daddy would get a good price. Unfortunately the pigs suddenly got really sick. The Vet was called. Long story short, it Steve and Jim's idea to fatten the hogs and grabbed everything they could get their little hands on - egg shells, coffee grounds, laundry soap, bleach, you name it, it was in the hog tonic - Ha!Ha!

“ I remember when I was little and you had the mumps but only on one side of your throat and then I got them from you and my whole throat and neck swelled up ridiculously huge. You felt so bad about me getting sick that you would sit and make word search puzzles for me and you waited on me hand and foot and then you got the mumps back from me and you were so mad! You sitting and making those puzzles for me is one of my most favorite childhood memories.
