“ My first memory of Granny was meeting this amazingly sweet and smiling woman 20 years ago that seemed to never meet a stranger. I was expecting her great grandson Johnathan Asher at the time so at 8 months pregnant just getting out of the car was a struggle, Lol. Before I could get my other foot on the ground and John got the words out of his mouth "Granny, this is Amy...." She already had her arms stretched as far as she could to give me a hug and the biggest smile I had ever seen. I have and never will forget that day. We love you Granny and will see you again. Amy, Johnathan, Dennis, Kimberly & Vallery.

“ I remember Aunt Jenny always being full of life. She told Herman and I, when she was 97 years young that she was going to have to find another dancing partner, because the one she had was 86, and he couldn't keep up with her. RIP in Peace Aunt Jenny, you can dance all the time now. Blessing for the family

“ I know you all will miss Granny, because I do & I was just a friend. Just always remember we will see her again soon. Granny Asher helped me so much with my Mama. That was so many years ago, but I have never forgot it. I had the chance to thank her & tell her how much I loved her. She was a light for every one. Now she has a new body & she is looking at my Saviors face. I just know she is jumping with joy. We will all meet up with her some sweet day. Love all of you. You are all such a precious family. May God comfort you & hug you tight. Call if you need any thing.

“Granny Asher was a sweet heart. I loved the kisses she would give me on my cheek. When I was a member of Linwood Baptist church I would get into character for my bible lessons for my children's church. I remember doing a lesson on storing up treasures, and I put tons of my mom's jewelry on just to act out my part. Granny asked me why I was wearing all those beautiful necklaces and rings, so I told her I was going to ask the kids what treasures were more important, the ones we store up down here or in heaven. She said, "oh in heaven for sure." Granny loved all the necklaces and rings, so I told her if I could get a hug she could have them all, so she gave me the biggest hug and kiss for the jewelry. She said it seemed like she got the best part of the bargain. I told her nope her kisses were worth a million. She couldn't believe I gave her all my mom's jewelry. My mom would have wanted her to have it. My mom passed away years earlier. I wonder if she told my mom I gave her all her jewelry? lol Granny will surely be missed, but I know she is rejoicing with all the angels and her loved ones. I can only imagine what it was like when she saw Jesus! For the first time she fully understands why storing up heavenly treasures is way more important than earthly ones. Heaven has truly gained a sweet soul.

Till we meet again, and I can get more hugs and kisses!
