“ Mrs Degutes truly loved to spend time with those she taught, she loved all people but took extra time to share her experiences with those who might benefit from them in the future. At first I saw her as a stern instructor but it didn't take very long to realize that she had the biggest heart in the room. She checked on me often and just a month ago wrote a note of encouragement to me and told me that she would always be there if I needed her. We talked frequently of our time in the Army, something that she was very, very proud of and rightly so. Mrs Degutes, thank you for taking time to encourage a scared new nurse, I am a better nurse having known you, though I will miss you and our facebook chats greatly! RIP
