“ It’s hard to put into words how great he was, an Unk who was always smiling and a laugh that was so contagious. I will always remember how I would beg him to make his famous banana pudding, oh how I loved it. In my childhood when he was coming to see us his mother lived with my mother his sister, how the house would be bussing with activities and happiness. I would stare out the living room window and yell he’s here Unk is here. What a great man. Carla, Amberlee, Ray you were very lucky children to have him as a father. I loved him dearly and love you all.
