“ Yesterday I said goodbye to an old acquaintance. It was said he had some problems, don't we all. Some things can be overcome, some can't. The Ace I knew was a kind, considerate, laid back, unpretentious, easy to talk to person. I can remember sitting around the dining table during family gatherings talking about current events, jobs, and life in general. He always called me Mr. Gary in his friendly, low, sometimes gravelly voice. He always greeted you with a smile peaking through the beard and mustache, and a warm hand shake. He reminded you of the guy sitting in a rocker on the porch of an old country store, playing checkers, sipping on an RC Cola, discussing the local gossip, the weather, or whatever the topic of the day was with the other country gentlemen. He was proud of his family. He loved to talk about "his boys" (grandsons), his nieces, and his step daughters. He loved and appreciated his wife also. A lucky man marries a woman who stands by him through thick and thin, good times and bad. Ace was a lucky man. Our prayers and thoughts go out to his wife Mackie, his family, his sisters and their families. There may be an empty seat at the next family gathering but he will always be in our memories.
